3. The format of the individual requirements papers has been modified. The general requirements section provides information on the importance of the subject area and the key intelligence gaps. The specific requirements provide suggested areas for research and development, but we do not intend that initiatives be limited to these specific areas. References provide data on related requirements identified in other forums. Points of contact are listed for additional information. Finally, a list of current DS&T initiatives is provided to place new initiatives in proper context.
